

Shadows

Words and Music © 2006 by Jamie McElman,
Mountain Rise Music, All Rights Reserved

There's nothing to see here
The past – it's a trap
You salvaged what you could when she left
Only rubble remains and you're familiar with that.

Is there something you'd ask for?
Do you have something to leave at her shrine?
Love died hard – you were kicked like a dog
There's just hopelessness here – no comfort to find.

(chorus)

Shadows lengthen
Nighttime descends.

You'll find nothing back there
Through this temporal veil
You so believed in the power of love
That you trusted her lead as she stepped off that trail.

Down into a dense thicket
Where the mud starts to suck at your shoes
The ground grew soft and the water did rise
'Til you're mired and lost as she whispers goodbye.

(chorus)

Shadows lengthen
Nighttime descends.

So do I need to remind you
'Bout this piece of life we all share
The past is what you carry with you
It's the lessons you've learned; it's the burdens you bear.

But nestled in with the sorrow
Joy's along for the ride
You see her in the setting lengthening light of the sun
Smiling from the passenger side.

(chorus)

Shadows lengthen
Nighttime descends.