

4/25

Words and Music © 2015 by Jamie McElman,
Mountain Rise Music, BMI, All Rights Reserved

April came to my door
Full of life, and a smile so self-assured
She moved within as if she owned the place
And I found myself wishing that she did.

May held out her hand, then turned away
When I didn't recognize just what her gesture meant to say
Then we both meandered on so unaware
Of the promise so alive and waiting there.

June was turning heads at 21
And by now we both were hopeful that our story had begun
We walked together home through darkened streets
As our chemistry was turning up the heat.

Into this life
Light erupts and darkness fades
An' I swear I've never known the likes of you
Into this life
Joy becomes a serenade
And together, love, there's nothing we can't do.
Nothing we can't do (2x)

I fell in love with Ms. July
The depth and ease of our report had me singing to the sky
And we laughed and learned and loved so eagerly
To our friends it seems our joy was plain to see.

August smiled and said she loved me too
And she spoke of trust and how I must take that leap anew
And when I saw the tender light within her eyes
"I'm yours", I said; "I'm in" she said, "surprise".

Into this life
The past dissolves in disarray
And we shed it like a skin, just me and you
Into this life
The road, it stretches unafraid
And together, love, there's nothing we can't do.
Nothing we can't do (4x)