(chorus)

I want one slow dance in the moonlight
An' I want one soft kiss in the rain
I want one cup of coffee 'round daylight
An' I want one, I want one
Invitation back again.

This one, she's got a look in her eye
Bound to steal your breath away
And very seldom, she reveals her intentions
You'll never know, try as you may
But she'll love you like a river flowing
Leave you washed up on the shore
She's strong; she'll never say where she's going
Makes you want her even more.

(chorus)

This one, she don't come with instructions
Still, you think you know the game
And what harm can exist in such beauty
You just can't disregard the flame
An' she'll move you like a wheel a turnin'
'Til you've clearly lost your way
There you are, until you see she's returnin'
Better find the nerve to say...

(chorus)

(bridge)

You've been dreaming of the perfect world
Where there's nothing you can't rise above
But deep inside she's just a little girl
Don't you be such a fool, don't you call it love.

This one, she'll never tell you goodbye
She won't let words get in the way
And what you're feeling, it don't bother her none
For her, tomorrow's a new day
And she's gone, like a flash of lightning
That left its image in your eyes
And you'll go one, although the prospect is frightening
One day you'll hear to your surprise.
