Years pass, pages turn
Stones cast, and bridges burn
Two paths, it's understood
Diverged, in a wood.

Where are we now?
The wheel turns over broken ground
Where are we now?

Years pass, the story's told
The bets are cast, the dice are rolled
Each breath - the past and present fuse
What's ahead lies just out of view.

Where are we now?
The wind blows over frozen ground
Where are we now?

Years pass, the season's change
Winter snows become summer rains
This field, though fallow now
Must yield before the plow.

Where are we now?
Will we cast our seeds on fertile ground?
Where are we now?

Years pass, the picture fades
Make the most of what you do today
Release, and cast away
Life's debts, yeah they've all been paid.

Where are we now?
Will we ever lay our burden down?
Where are we now?
