

Tribe

Words and Music © 2020 by Jamie McElman
Mountain Rise Music, All Rights Reserved

We pressed our hands together
Standing in the shadows of the streetlight
Then and now and forever
When I'm with you these moments are just right.

Then there's your affirmation
Your reflection on love
Just the thought is a celebration
Of then and now and the time to come.

(bridge)

You – no stranger to intrigue
You – fellow traveler in time
You – chosen family
You – a part of my tribe.

(chorus)

We souls ride a wave in time
Different skins, but still intertwined
And recognized by the same two eyes
As tribe.

We are kindred spirits
Bonded by our commonality
We wend our way to whenever this is We're always where we're supposed to be.

Seven billion people
Most of them you couldn't give away
Despite the chances in each of life's sequels
We find our family along the way.

(bridge)

You – so eager for mystery
You – always reading my signs
You – chosen family
You – a part of my tribe.

(chorus)

We souls ride a wave in time
We change our skins, but still we're intertwined
And recognized by the same two eyes
As tribe.