

At The End

Words and Music © 1981, 2015 by Jamie McElman,
Mountain Rise Music, All Rights Reserved

How do you deal
With what you don't understand
And why must you travel across so much of the land
Just to live
Yeah, just to live
That's assuming of course that you've got something special to give
Try to fill up your life while you ride, while you ride on the wind
Slowing down just to find you're again, you're again at the end.

How do you fight
What you never quite see
With no chance to discover some desired clarity
You want so much to give
Yeah, just to give
Take your bow to the force that trips you up from below
And realize of course that your part in this show
Has again reached the end
Would it surprise you to find you're again, again at the end.

Will I ever see peace in existence?
Through clarity I bring you deliverance
Can I ever achieve due resistance?
Let your blackness uncover forgiveness
Uncover forgiveness.